Jennifer Sharkey said she received a call about Lane 103 Crooked Lake. She said it is located by the County Park entrance. Ms. Sharkey said there is a gate across the lane and is a privately maintained lane. She said the property owner that lives at the end of the lane wanted to know about the gate ownership. Ms. Sharkey said there are no records on the gate ownership at the Highway Department or at the Park. The property owner also wants to know who maintains the road, why is it a privately maintained road, who maintains the gate and why the gate is there. Kim Meyers said the owner of that property put the gate up years ago. She said she remembers them coming into the meetings. James Crowl said the owner did not want traffic going through there so that is why it is private. Ms. Sharkey said they have communicated with the property owner about why it is a private lane and why the County doesn’t have control of the gate, but he wanted further discussion with the County Attorney on the issue.

Donald Stuckey said that unless the property owner can show it has been dedicated to the County by the previous property owners or by approval of the subdivisions with a dedication to the County within the plat which was accepted by the County, then it is a private lane. He said when roads are dedicated to the County, the County requires the road to be built to certain specifications and no one wants to do that. Mr. Stuckey said the Plan Commission normally doesn’t permit plats that have private roads in them unless it is a single private road for a one (1) or two (2) lot subdivision because people get upset when the roads fall apart and the County doesn’t fix them. Donald Stuckey said he will call the property owner.

Jennifer Sharkey said another issue that is becoming more prevalent is the burning of leaves in the County Right of Way. She said she spoke to the Sheriff about the issue and there isn’t anything written that prohibits it, but it needs to be looked at further. Ms. Sharkey said it causes damage to tiles and when it is done on newly paved roadways it doesn’t look the best. Donald Stuckey said property owners can’t do anything inconsistent with the normal use within the right of way and burning would prohibit the normal use of the right of way.
