A native of Amelia County, Sam Arrington is married to a sweet girl he's known since second grade—Angie (Hill) Arrington. They have six children together and are expecting their first grandchild. Sam is the owner of Genesis Décor, a local business with 31 employees that manufactures cabinets and fixtures that are shipped to food-service companies all over the United States and Canada.

Sam is a 1988 graduate of Amelia Academy and 1993 graduate of Virginia Tech where he earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering. He worked in Richmond for Reynolds Metals Company in their Corporate Research Division for eight years. While there, he had articles published in trade journals for the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) and Automotive Technology International, presented at the SAE Congress in Detroit, and was awarded a US Patent for a device used in the welding of aluminum. He also designed a robotic welding work cell used for testing aluminum welding processes and supervised a fabrication shop that produced a variety of prototypes of products and equipment related to the manufacturing of aluminum.

After leaving Reynolds, Sam joined local business owner Robert Hutchinson, who had started a commercial cabinet business in a small shop behind his Amelia home. The two worked together for 11 years developing products and growing their business through great products and customer service. Mr. Hutchinson sold his portion of the business to Sam in 2011, and the business has continued to grow and prosper. In 2016, Genesis Décor moved into its current 40,000 square-foot home in the former GBC building on Goodes Bridge Road. By utilizing modern software, Genesis is very efficient at providing design and rendering services to its customers, as well as delivering rapid production of custom cabinets using a combination of manual and automated manufacturing equipment.

Sam serves his local church, River Run Presbyterian, every week as "the sound guy." When he is not spending time with his family or watching one of his children at a sporting event, Sam enjoys creating and mixing music with friends.

Amelia County Business and Tourism // 2024 Media Budget Proposal

// Introduction

Amelia County, Virginia, renowned for its rich heritage and natural beauty, stands poised for transformative growth. Our proposed budget aims to strategically utilize both video and photography in initiatives to bolster both Amelia County business and tourism, with the goal of the community flourishing while preserving the charm and character that make Amelia County unique. With this budget and the media Red Velocity captures, we will work to attract new businesses and grow tourism with the purpose of increasing Amelia County as a destination of choice for visitors near and far.

// Strategy

Creating a compelling strategy to showcase Amelia County, Virginia, using video and photography can greatly enhance its appeal to businesses and tourists. Our plan to achieve this is executed in three phases - Pre-production, production, and post production.

1. Pre-Production - Utilizing research/zoom communication with Amelia County officials, our Red Velocity creative writer/brand strategist will help develop the story and create pointed questions for strategically selected people we interview. These elements come together to tell the Amelia County business and tourism stories. This research will identify unique aspects of Amelia County that set it apart.

2. Production - Days of filming/photography: In phase 2, we apply our research and planning through filming and photography. We will focus our video and photography on Amelia tourism (horseback riding, fishing, kayaking) and businesses and craftsmanship surrounding the Amelia Day Festival while capturing historical sites, natural landscapes, cultural events, and local businesses. We will follow a video and photography "shot list" that aligns with our script and overall creative strategy. We suggest incorporating drone video, ground video b-roll, and interviews with local residents and business owners to add depth and authenticity to the content. We will utilize multiple cinematic cameras, drones, steadicam gimbals, professional lighting and sound to accomplish our goals. In our business interviews we will capture true craftsmanship in woodworking (or another craft Amelia staff decides on) featuring interviews with local craftsmen, entrepreneurs and business leaders to provide firsthand insights into how great Amelia County is. Farming can also be a component we capture. Our interviews should evoke emotions of community pride and belonging.

3. Post Production - Editing - Once all the visual assets are captured we move on to phase 3, editing. For video, Red Velocity blends the B-roll and the interviews into a 2 to 4 minute video with selected music designed to powerfully and effectively connect with our audience to be deployed on the Amelia County website, social media, events, and other platforms. The photography will be utilized in this manner as well. The video and photography finished products are designed to showcase the beauty, opportunities, and potential of Amelia County, Virginia, attracting both businesses and tourists to contribute to its growth and prosperity.
