

Note: frequent references to a burial card appear below. The cards had been prepared, apparently from other records, in December of 1919. Although the cards list the burials as taking place in Wilson Cemetery, that would not necessarily have been the name of the cemetery in the early days of Barre history. Quite possibly, the burying ground would have been known as the Nichols Cemetery. The cards carry a date of Dec 24, 1919 and have a typed name, "C. DeF. Bancroft" and are countersigned by E. H. ____y (?), Town Clerk of Barre. The city and the town became separate entities in 1895.

The individuals shown on these pages are from the two historic sections of Wilson Cemetery and newer sections are not represented. Any information found in these pages should be treated as possible leads, the data presented are interpretations of items found concerning those buried in Wilson Cemetery. Should you need further information, do your own research, what is here may be a good starting point in your search. Refer to the Old Yard 3 & Old Yard 4 schematic for lot locations.

Warren Ellis, of Barre, became assistant judge December 1, 1815, and served the next three years, and again for a while after the system was changed in 1825. He came to Barre from Claremont, N. H., about 1803; he was born in Claremont, May 24, 1777. Judge Ellis was a saddler by trade, and withal a good musician. He represented Barre seven years. His son Warren H. went to Waukegan, Ill., and a daughter married D. H. Sherman, and went west. Judge Ellis died in Barre, June 10, 1842.<sup>2</sup>

HON. WARREN ELLIS

Came into Barre about 1803, from Claremont, N. H.; was born May 24, 1777. He was a saddler by trade, and carried on the business very successfully. He gave considerable attention to music, was a good performer on the violin, taught singing, and was one of the best vocalists of his day. After he had done singing in public, he took great delight in conversing and instructing others in the science of music. He held the office of town clerk of Barre 7 years, was judge of the County Court 6 years, and represented the town 7 years in the General Assembly. He has one son, Warren H. Ellis, Esq., who resides at Waukegan, Ill.; is clerk of the County Court for that county, and one daughter, Mrs. D. H. Sherman, who resides in the West. He died at Barre, June 10, 1842, aged 65 years.<sup>3</sup>
