Entrepreneurial Communities Overview

This Strategic Plan for Entrepreneurial Development is the product of four facilitated planning sessions tailored to the unique demographics, economic trends, service providers, and entrepreneurship needs within Region II (Hamilton and Wright Counties). Planning team members consisted of a wide variety of stakeholders including entrepreneurs, economic development and chambers of commerce leadership, financial institutions, small business development centers and entrepreneurship centers, community colleges, elected officials and the regional council of government.

The planning team, which began its work in January 2014, identified strategic goals and objectives around the areas of supportive culture, business and technical assistance, networking and capital. The group also carefully assessed the service providers most capable and appropriate for assuming key leadership roles in the implementation of the plan and addressing each objective. To that end, the team also identified the need for a new regional task group to sustain the focus and enthusiasm for entrepreneurial development. The Wright Hamilton Entrepreneurial Network (WHEN) will be convened as the coordinating entity in the implementation and monitoring for many of the key areas contained in this plan.

During May and June 2014, members of the planning team will personally be contacting the organizations identified as potential implementers in the Strategic Plan for Entrepreneurial Development and request from each organization a formal adoption and endorsement of the plan. It is the planning team’s intention and hope that these organizations will incorporate the objectives into their own operational plans and implement targeted action steps to achieve the goals necessary to elevate and transform the region’s entrepreneurship related climate and economy. WHEN, with the assistance of UNI Business and Community Services, will monitor progress and reconvene the planning team for an annual plan update.

Key Research Findings for Region II

As part of the planning process a situation analysis was conducted that examined the region’s demographics and economics, and developed an in-depth demographic and psychographic profile of the entrepreneurial population and culture and assets in the region. The following are key findings from the situation analysis:

Declining Population - The total population in 2012 for the region was 28,335: 15,344 for Hamilton County and 12,991 for Wright County. Since 2000, the region’s population has declined while the U.S. and Iowa populations have grown. The population in both counties is projected to continue to decline through 2018. (Source: U.S. Census Bureau & DemographicsNow.com)

Aging Population - The median age in both counties in 2012 was significantly older than that of the U.S. and Iowa. Wright County’s median age was 44.4 years and Hamilton County’s median age was 42.7 years (compared to a U.S. median age of 37.4 years and Iowa’s median age of 38.1 years). Over a third of Wright County’s population (35.6%) was 55 years of age or older and 32.2% of Hamilton County’s population was age 55 or older. (Source: U.S. Census Bureau)

Entrepreneurship - Hamilton County in 2012 had 1,758 business establishments that accounted for 8,426 jobs. 39.5% of those businesses were sole proprietorships. Wright County had 1,490 businesses accounting for 8,244 jobs and 38.2% of those businesses were sole proprietorships. (Source: YourEconomy.org)

Interest in Entrepreneurship - In 2013, 13.5% of the Laborshed survey respondents in Hamilton County were interested in starting a business and 11.8% of the respondents in Wright County were interested in starting a business. Overall, 78.3% of respondents were employed at the time of the survey and 57.5% were males. (Source: Iowa Workforce Development)

Impact of Entrepreneurship - Hamilton County had considerable growth in nonfarm proprietor’s income from 2007 to 2012, while in Wright County during that time period the nonfarm proprietor’s income has remained fairly flat. In 2012 nonfarm proprietor’s income in Hamilton County was over $851 million which accounted from 12.9% of the total personal income in the county. For Wright County nonfarm proprietor’s income in 2012 was just over $275.3 million and represented 4.6% of total personal income in the county. (Source: U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis)

Markets - From a market segmentation perspective, the majority of the region’s households fall into the “Prairie Living” household classification. “Prairie Living” households include people who live in the most rural regions, and who have strong ties to family. Most of the population is older than the US median age and a healthy portion are retired. Comfort, practicality, and low price drive purchasing decisions. “Prairie Living” is one of 65 household types identified by Esri’s Tapestry Segmentation System based on socioeconomic and demographic characteristics. (Source: Esri Tapestry Segmentation)
Support Services - The region has a robust network of service providers working to support the regional economy. Many of the area local economic development organizations, such as the Belmond Chamber of Commerce, the Clarion Chamber & Development, Hamilton County S.E.E.D/Main Street, Wright County Economic Development and Webster City Economic Development, are active holding workshops on topics such as social media marketing, partnering with Iowa State University design students to provide local business owners with design consulting, and gathering owners together to network numerous times throughout the year.

Financing Options - There are significant sources for traditional debt funding in the region. There are 21 financial institutions in the two counties with five banks being a Small Business Administration preferred lender. A total 15 revolving loan funds serve all or part of the region. There is limited equity financing in the region for entrepreneurs who thus must seek equity funding outside of the region and often outside of Iowa.
